Specialist Residential care for individuals with learning disabilities.

What we want

We want a world where people with a learning disability are valued equally, listened to and included. Everything we do is about making this world a reality.

How we are doing it

We're here to improve the lives of people with a learning disability and their families now, and fight alongside them for a better future. We team up with our network of over 300 local groups to reach people across England, Northern Ireland and Wales.

Our objectives

We want to have made a significant and measurable improvement to people's attitudes towards people with a learning disability.

We want to have contributed to improving the quality of life for people with a learning disability.

We want more people with a learning disability to have stronger friendships and relationships, and be better connected to their communities.

We want to see an increase in the skills and understanding of healthcare professionals, so that health outcomes for people with a learning disability improve.

We want more children aged 0-5 with a learning disability and their families to receive the right early support.

We want more people with a learning disability to have real jobs in the open labour market, and for more employers to know that people with a learning disability make good workers when supported properly.

Limetree Avenue is a 3-storey, semi-detached house in a quiet, residential street within quarter of a mile of Retford town centre, near shops, pubs, and cinema and leisure facilities. The home caters for six male and female residents with learning disabilities. It was established in 1991 and five of the residents have been there since that time. The latest addition arrived in 1996; no one has been admitted since. Five of the current residents attend local authority day care services for some part of the week. All residents have their own personalised decorated bedrooms, with a communal lounge, dining room and kitchen. There is a bathroom and a shower room; there are toilets on each floor. One ground floor bedroom is en-suite. There is a small well maintained garden. On the second floor there is a sleep-in room for staff and an office where records, documents, policies and procedures are kept. Annual Service Review Detailed information was not provided about fees, but the manager stated these are dependent on individual assessed needs. Annual Service Review
