

JOB ADVERT 20 HOURS PER WEEK

BREAKAWAY CLUBS CO-ORDINATOR

Starting Salary £26,341 pro rata for 20 hpw

Are you looking for a fulfilling career that makes a difference in the lives of young people with learning disabilities?

Transform Training is seeking an exceptional person with the skills and experience to become our next dedicated project co-ordinator for the Breakaway Clubs, a participatory arts project for young people with learning disabilities in Nottinghamshire aged from 14 - 25.

This role offers a unique opportunity to make a difference in the lives of young people who face unique challenges.

As the project co-ordinator, you'll be responsible for planning and delivering engaging activities that promote learning, socialisation, and independence through music, drama and the arts. You'll work directly with the young people, assisted by one of our sessional youth arts workers and team of volunteers to ensure that each young person receives the support and guidance they need to successfully take part in club sessions, workshops, trips and performances.

The ideal candidate will have experience working with young people with learning disabilities and be passionate about making a positive impact in their lives. You'll have excellent organisational skills, be able to work independently, and have a flexible approach to work. Some experience in the arts would be a distinct advantage.

This is a part-time position, with 20 hours per week to be worked flexibly according to the needs of the job. The salary for this role is £26,341 per year pro rata for 20 hours per week. If you're ready to take on a rewarding challenge and join our team, apply now to become our next project co-ordinator for Breakaway Clubs for young people with learning disabilities at Transform Training.
