

Mental Wellbeing at Work

Supporting Others

Help the person to consider what is affecting their mental wellbeing. It might be:

- Workload issues.
- Work-life imbalance.
- Difficulty finding support.
- Difficult work relationships.
- Big changes or uncertainty at work.
- Personal issues.

Tips for starting a conversation about mental wellbeing at work

- Choose an appropriate time and place.
- Actively listen and ask open, non-judgemental questions.
- Offer to support your colleague to create a Wellness Action Plan.
- Be flexible, make adjustments where possible.
- Support people to seek advice and help and offer to explore options with them.
- and don't forget to look after your own mental wellbeing!

Five Ways to Wellbeing

The 5 Ways to Wellbeing are some simple steps someone can take every single day to improve your mental wellbeing. Trying these things could help someone feel more positive and able to get the most out of work.

The Five Ways to Wellbeing can be used to guide and coach someone else to identify what works for them to protect and improve their mental wellbeing. Tips on using the Five ways to wellbeing at work can be found here:

The Five Ways to Wellbeing are:

Connect:

catch up with a colleague with a hot drink

Be active:

take a walking meeting

Take notice:

plan a different route on your commute

Keep Learning:

research something new

Give:

introduce yourself to a new starter
